"I am obliged to you for giving me an opportunity of examining a specimen of the new great Biblical enterprise in America, of which I had heard much previously. The impression made on my mind is that the undertaking is a valuable one, and that it seems to be in the hands of men of sound views, as far as can be estimated from a short specimen. As to the translation of Job, there seems to be evidence of an extensive acquaintance with what the Germans have done in this department. On the whole, my cursory examination has been as satisfactory as such an examination can be."—*Extract of Letter from the Rev. G.
